These days it is hard to imagine an interior without exposed concrete. While it used to be normal to try and hide seemingly never-ending raw materials, it is the new norm to actually expose it in all of its glory. Concrete is pure and tough and it provides a certain robust touch. It is a bold and versatile material that is used to make walls and floors, but it can also be used to create contemporary home accessories. Zilverstad is introducing the industrial look at home with Solido. An extensive collection of eye-catching designs that is ahead of its time. Various chandeliers and lanterns can be used together to create a wonderful combination. The collection can also be complimented with a multifunctional bowl, made from a combination of concrete and glass. Are you adventurous enough?
